INVENTED HYDROPHONE
Will Participate in Campaign for Institution's Financial Development

By Associated Press
Chicago—Max Mason, professor of Mathematical Physics in the University of Wisconsin, is the new president of the University of Chicago. He will begin his administration Oct. 1.

Selection of Professor Mason, who invented the noted Mason hydrophone for detecting and locating submarines during the World War, was made by a joint committee of faculty and trustees named after the death of President Ernest De Witt Burton last May. His election by the trustees was unanimous upon the recommendation of the joint committee and he accepted.

President-elect Mason is 47 years old. He is a native of Wisconsin, having been born at Madison on Oct. 26, 1877. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin as Bachelor of Arts at 21, after participating in social and musical activities and winning a "W" in track. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity and honorary Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. After obtaining his doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Göttingen in 1902 he spent a year as instructor in mathematics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and from 1904 to 1908 was assistant professor in Yale university. Since 1908 he has been Professor of Mathematical Physics at Wisconsin.

During the war he was a member of the submarine commission of the national research council, the work involving the direction of many men expenditure of large sums. His administration brought him a national reputation. Upon his return to Wisconsin after the war he was made secretary of the faculty.

Professor Mason is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Mathematical society, the American Physical society, the Deutsche Mathematiker Vereinigung and the Circolo Matematico Di Palermo.

CANCEL BELGIAN DEBT INTEREST

COOLIDGE ENJOYS VISIT WITH HIKES AND MOTOR RIDES

Plymouth, Vt.—President Coolidge is enjoying his stay in this isolated hamlet, and has postponed his return to Swampscott. It is probable, however, that he will be back at the summer White House before the end of the week and he may leave here Thursday.

The excellent weather that has prevailed since Saturday has contributed greatly to the president's enjoyment as it has enabled him to get out doors for hikes and motor rides on dirt roads.

Although somewhat shut off from the outside world, the president is keeping in touch with governmental affairs by wire and mail.

Mr. Coolidge expressed satisfaction when advised an agreement has been reached on the Belgian debt question. Last night a radio message from him to Donald MacMillan, wishing the arctic explorer "good luck," also was made public.

G. O. P. LEADERS TO INVADE STATE, MOSES PREDICTS

Will Support Candidacy of Wilcox to Succeed Robert M. LaFollette

Chicago—Invasion of Wisconsin by regular Republican leaders to support the candidacy of Roy P. Wilcox for senator to succeed the late Robert M. LaFollette was predicted here Wednesday by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire.

Senator Moses, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, who in a statement to Chicago newspapermen said that a three-cornered contest with Francis E. McGovern, former governor, a candidate would mean easy victory for Robert M. LaFollette Jr.

CAL WILL NOT WORK OUT TAX BILL IN FULL

Executive to Decide on Necessary Revenue, and Let Congress Frame Bill

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1925 by The Post Pub. Co.
Ft. Worth, Tex.—President Coolidge decided a number of things in his conference with Secretary Mellon, Senator Smoot and Representative Tilton, of Connecticut, who succeeds Nicholas Longworth as speaker-elect, and as Republican leader of the House.

First of all, the question of a bond issue for a public building program was abandoned. Whatever expenditures are made will be in form of direct appropriations. The idea of adding to the public debt by a bond issue when the federal government, as a matter of fact, is in a position to make small appropriations annually for public buildings, was looked upon with disfavor, although it had been put forward by some of its sponsors in the administration as "having some advantages."

Second, the tax program of the administration will not be worked out in detail and offered as an administration program either by the president or the secretary of the treasury. The plan is for the executive to state just what much revenue is needed, and to leave to Congress the task of framing a bill that will meet the desired objectives.

APPROVES PRELIMINARIES
Third, the negotiations with Belgium for a settlement of war debts have reached a point where the preliminaries followed by the American World War Funding Commission have been approved by the president. It can't be said that the terms given Belgium will necessarily be applied in any other cases. Each problem will be decided on its merits, with ability to pay and executive capacity as a guide. Interferences have been drawn and negotiations made, as to the details of negotiations, but the American commission has felt it was unwise to authorize anything for publication because of possible embarrassment to the parties. The truth is the American government has not departed from the principles set forth some time ago—namely that the principal must be paid in full. The period of years and the terms of interest are under discussion, but an agreement is near, because the United States government will not look with favor on any private loans to Belgium.

Heat Wave, Storms Send Weather To Front Pages

By Associated Press
Chicago—The weather has returned to the first page in the middlewest. While a rival of the early July heat wave sent the mercury skyrocketing to record heights in portions of Kansas and Missouri, severe winds and hail storms ploughed destructive courses through southeastern Iowa and southern Illinois Tuesday bringing vivid memories of the tornado destruction of mid-March.

Cooler weather was predicted Wednesday for the heat belt where Tuesday it was possible to fry eggs on street car rails.

Damage to crops and property estimated in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 was caused by rain, wind and hail in Iowa and Illinois. At places the hail was the size of hens eggs. The greatest devastation was in western McDonough-co., Ill., where damage was estimated at between $500,000 and $800,000 over 200 square miles.

Murphyboro, barely recovering from its elemental disaster of last March, suffered $30,000 damages in a windstorm, which strangely started at the same hour as the March tornado, 3 p. m. The roof of a school house was blown 200 yards and the side walls razed.

Damage estimated at $450,000 was caused in Iowa. Passengers on a Rock Island train were injured when windows were shattered as the train moved through the storm area near Brighton.

A dozen cities in Kansas reported temperatures above the century mark. At Topeka, where the mercury reached 105, Col. J. W. F. Hughes fired eggs on the street car rail. Emporia was the hottest point in the country with 106.

MUST SETTLE FULL AMOUNT IN 62 YEARS

Released from War Interest; Given 3 1/2 Per Cent Rate on Remainder

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Bearing the personal approval of President Coolidge, terms for funding the Belgian War debt to the United States have been worked out by the debt commissions of the two countries after negotiations of unusual brevity.

Little more than a week was required to bring about accord of the program of repayment of the little kingdom's debt, which was fixed at $417,780,000 as of June 15, 1925.

The terms provided for a remission of interest on the $171,730,000 loan, prior to the Armistice, and for a part remission of interest on $246,000,000 borrowed for reconstruction work.

The agreement subject to ratification by the American congress and the Belgian government was described as recognized by the United States as a "weighty moral obligation" as a result of assurances given the little kingdom by President Wilson at the time of the Versailles peace conference, and also the right of Belgium to particular and special treatment by this nation.

The terms call for complete payment within 62 years. The $171,730,000 loan, during the time of actual fighting with Germany is to be paid free of all accrued or future interest.

The interest on the post Armistice debt of $246,000,000 was fixed at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent. The Americans agreed to forgo a part of the interest on this amount for the first 10 years, and arbitrary amounts were established bringing a reduction of nearly 50 million.

Brussels—The Belgian department of finances Wednesday began its study of the agreement reached at Washington for the funding of this country's obligations to the United States.

GERTRUDE EDERLE WILL REST AFTER HER TRYING SWIM

Cape Gris Nez—Gertrude Ederle is feeling no ill effects from her great effort of Tuesday in which she battled the waters of the English channel for nearly nine hours in a game but unsuccessful attempt to be the first woman swimmer to cross from France to England.

Miss Ederle intends to take a complete rest for two or three days after which she may go to Paris for a short stay with her chaperon. While in Paris she will decide whether to undertake another channel attempt this year.

The only physical reminder of her wonderful swim is a slight irritation of the skin due to her encounter with school of jelly fish four miles out of the cape.

"The feeling of these slimy things against my arms and legs was as much to do with upsetting my stomach as swallowing the salt water," she said.

DAWES TO VISIT FATHER'S HOME NEAR MAUSTON

Will Be Guest at Farm Home of His Father and Grandfather Aug. 28

By Associated Press
Chicago—Vice president Charles G. Dawes on August 28 will visit Mauston, Wis., and the farm home of his father and grandfather near that place.

The vice president has been invited to attend the Juneau-co fair on that date and will view an historical pageant which includes a representation of his father, General Rufus B. Dawes, delivering an address when Fort Sumter was fired on, of his raising of a company and departing at its head at its completion in the Civil war.

Vice president Dawes had some of those historical times of pioneer and war days recalled by Captain J. T. Hanson, court commissioner of Juneau-co., who wrote as "a friend of your father's" inviting him to attend the fair and pageant. Captain Hanson wrote that he was a native of Detroit, having been born in 1843, and was the youngest person present when Rufus Dawes and his father opened up the Dawes farm near Mauston in 1860. The captain explained that his own father was captain S. T. Hanson, who fought under Houston in the strife between Texas and Mexico. General Rufus Dawes at the plow and Captain Hanson drove the oxen, the latter recalled in his letter, while rail splitters were at work nearby and others helped build a fence. Rufus Dawes delivered the July 4 patriotic address at a school house near Stewart settlement that year.

In the dark days preceding the Civil war both General Dawes and his father made addresses in a school house on April 25, 1861, after President Lincoln had called on April 15 for volunteers, 100 men. Among them Rufus Dawes volunteered. Five days later they met and unanimously elected Rufus Dawes their captain.

STEAMER WITH 677 ON BOARD IS DESTROYED

Boiler Explodes and Escaping Steam Scalds Almost 100 Passengers

REPORT TWO MISSING

Navy Rescue Parties Work feverishly and Save Rest of Excursionists

BULLETIN
Washington, D. C.—An investigation by the Steamboat service was ordered today into the disaster aboard the S. S. Mackinac.

Secretary Hoover personally instructed George Uhler, inspector general of the service to proceed immediately to Providence to go into all phases of the accident.

Newport, R. I.—Live steam that poured over 677 excursionists aboard the steamer Mackinac in Narragansett Bay late Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday had claimed the lives of 34 persons while 40 others were so badly scalded that fear was felt for their lives. Many more were seriously injured and one person was reported missing. Groups of merry-makers on the steamer were startled by a hissing sound, and surging of the decks about 15 minutes after they had put out from Newport for their return voyage to Pawtucket. Many jumped overboard while almost all of those below decks were believed to have been killed or to have been seriously burned.

There was no loud report such as usually accompanies an explosion and the cause of the disaster remained a mystery Wednesday. Conflicting reports said the ship's boiler had burst and that steam pipes had been broken. An official investigation was started.

Physicians at the naval hospital stated that they expected the death list to mount to at least 45 within the next few hours. It would be days, they said, before the more seriously injured were out of danger.

The majority of the dead and injured were trapped on the first and second decks when the boiler exploded. No report was heard and those on board said that their first warning was escaping steam which came in such volume that they were powerless to escape.

The accident happened within a stone's throw of the naval hospital, less than 100 yards from shore, otherwise the casualty list would have been trebled, passengers said Wednesday. The Mackinac was a one-funnel steamer equipped with 750 horse power engines. Her gross tonnage was 512.

She was built at Ferrysburg, Mich. in 1919, and for a while was in service on the Great Lakes and then Norfolk and Baltimore. The excursionists, including many women and children, were homeward bound from an outing at Newport. A patch on the boiler which had been placed there just before the departure of the boat gave way, exploding the boiler and throwing the passengers into a panic. Capt. Thomas McVey, of Pawtucket, the skipper, said the boat was traveling 15 knots an hour, its fullest speed and was loaded to capacity.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS BRING DOWN BOMBER

New York—Completing tests of anti-aircraft defenses of Fort Tilden on the Long Island side of outer New York harbor, coast artillery guns have brought down an "enemy" bomber eight seconds after firing started.

Two batteries were trained on the sleeve shaped target representing an enemy and towed by a Martin bomber Tuesday. Sixty-eight rounds were fired during the few seconds and the target came fluttering to the ground, pierced by several three inch shells.

Searchlights illuminated the sky for miles when the tests were concluded after dark.

The three convicts, who left behind the lifeless bodies of two guards and one of their companions, "Oregon Bert" Joens, in the break, had disappeared again in the heart of Portland as completely and suddenly as they had invaded the city following a wild dash in an automobile driven by a youth they had seized and carried along as a hostage.

ESCAPED INSANE MAN CAUGHT BY SHERIFF

A telephone call from a resident of Center Valley about 11:45 Wednesday morning sent Sheriff P. G. Schwartz out in that direction to pick up an insane man who had escaped from the Waupaca-co asylum at Weyauwega. Sheriff Schwartz discovered him wandering aimlessly along the tracks between Center Valley and Binghamton and at about 12:15 brought him in to Appleton for confinement.

Mr. Schwartz had notified authorities at the Weyauwega asylum as soon as he received the call from Center Valley and they instructed him that such a man had escaped from their institution. Spear was said to have left the institution two days ago and had wandered through the woods and along the railroad tracks since that time. Authorities from the asylum will come to Appleton to take charge of the patient, who had been in the institution for over a year.

public schools of Appleton for the fall. Some of the teachers who for-have been transferred to junior schools. There will be 45 teachers in the Roosevelt, Wilson and McKinley junior high schools, and 65 in the grade schools of the four Appleton school districts. The list:

FRUSTRATE ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP AUTOMOBILIST

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Beaulieu 129
W. Foster-st., returned Monday from Camp Custer, Mich. where Mr. Beaulieu, who is a lieutenant in the officers reserve corps, was called two weeks ago, to attend a short session of the Officers Reserve Training school.
During the drive to Michigan an attempt was made to hold them up by two men in a roadster. Mr. and Mrs.
o'clock in the morning and when they were several miles out they passed a car which was parked alongside the road. One of the men called to them to stop but Mr. Beaulieu feared a hold up and kept on moving. A few minutes later the car drew up beside them and the driver commanded them to draw over to the side of the road. Mr.
Beaulieu however paid no attention to the command, but kept on going.

START MOVEMENT FOR REVIVAL OR FARM-CITY MEETS

Farmers and Chambers of Commerce Work on Plan for Community Gatherings

A movement is underway for resuming the farm-city get-together suppers and meetings which have been held in the vicinity of Appleton for the last two years with a good deal of success. The committee on rural affairs of the Chamber of Commerce has the matter in hand and will hold a meeting shortly for the purpose of selecting some farm for the first of these gatherings. One invitation has already been received from an Outagamie-co farmer.
Meetings of this kind are held on farms in late summer and in the city in the winter. They have drawn business men and farmers together to mutually study their problems of marketing and other phases of commerce.
Large crowds have attended these gatherings in the past. Everyone brings a basketful of lunch to be "pooled" with the rest, and farmers furnish the milk. After supper a program of speeches and discussions is usually carried out.

drew a revolver, and tried to crowd their car into the ditch. Just at this moment Mr. Beaulieu noticed that they were approaching a filling station and managed to hold the road until he was near enough to turn in and head back to Waukegan. The other car did not follow them back.

The Low Price of Gasoline

"Civilization moves on wheels," says George Otis Smith, Director of United States Geological Survey, in an article dwelling on the relation of petroleum to society.

The accuracy of Mr. Smith's conclusion is illustrated by the published statement that 88 million Americans enjoy the use of automobiles.
During 12 months ending December 31, 1924, the number of registered motor vehicles in the United States increased by 2,427,758.

The constant and rapid increase in the use of automobiles has created a demand for gasoline which could not be supplied under the old refining practices, even with our magnificent national production of crude oil. This problem would have been serious indeed had not the petroleum industry taken giant strides in increasing the yield of gasoline from a given amount of crude oil.

In this important work the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has taken a leading part; in fact, this Company developed the first com-mercially successful cracking process to obtain a greater percentage of gasoline from crude oil.
Today cracking processes are used quite generally throughout the industry.

The tangible result of this intensive and constructive work on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is reflected in published figures, revealing a 50% increase from 1918 to 1924 in the amount of gasoline recovered from a given amount of crude petroleum.

The intangible, but none the less direct, benefit of this effort of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), is the present low price of gasoline.
Except for the advanced work of this Company, motorists would be paying a much higher price for the gasoline they use. Of this achievement the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is justly proud.

This is but one of the many phases of the broad and comprehensive service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) which reflects its benefits in so obvious a way as to have earned for the Company the confidence, respect and esteem of thirty million people in ten Middle Western states.

LA FOLLETTE'S PLATFORM

Young La Follette has issued a statement of the platform on which he will run for United States senator. As was to be expected, it is mainly a re-declaration of the principles advocated by his distinguished father. It could have been nothing less, if it were not more. Whether he is the real author of the statement he has issued or whether it was prepared in collaboration with his mother, or other outside assistance, is of no immediate consequence.

His ability to champion the cause of his father and his right to leadership of the Progressives will be determined not by statements but by performances. He ought to demonstrate to the people of Wisconsin a capacity for so great a responsibility in order to be elected, and if elected he will have to prove this capacity again as a member of the senate. Ultimately he will be subjected to the test that every man in public life must undergo. For the good of the Progressive cause and for the effectiveness of Wisconsin's representation in the senate, the test ought to be applied before so high a trust is committed to him. He can be fairly well measured by his public appearances and speeches in the campaign. It will be physically possible for him to make himself known and heard by hundreds of thousands of citizens and that is what will be expected of him.

It is unnecessary to express opinion of young La Follette's platform as a whole. The best analysis of it and its significance lie in its negative inferences. These are in effect that Calvin Coolidge is not a man to be trusted, that he is a chump president and that his policies are injurious to the country. This is pretty strong from a youth of 30 who has never had public or official responsibilities of weight in his life. One would imagine he was speaking of a discredited fifth-rate politician instead of a man elected president by the greatest majority ever given that office, and a man who if anything has grown in the confidence and esteem of the people since his election.

Young La Follette's opinion of the heavy reductions in federal income taxation that have been made and the additional reductions that are to be made, together with the government's program of rigid economy, is best reflected in the statement that: "Congress should act for the relief of agriculture before considering reduction of supertaxes and other special privilege measures." He favors "genuine relief measures for the farmers," and like all good politicians, refrains from specifying what these measures should be. It is to be taken for granted, obviously, that Mr. Coolidge's active measures, along with his keen knowledge of and interest in the subject, which have already resulted in a great improvement in farm conditions and farm prosperity and excellent future prospects, are as nothing. Some mysterious political means are to be employed by the youthful candidate to shower the farmers with riches, and they will be as mysterious and elusive 40 years from today.

The railroads are denounced and the demand made for prewar freight rates, this notwithstanding wages and prices have been kept far above that level. To the great good of employes and producers. The railroads, which have suffered enormously from loss of traffic by the extensive development of motor car competition and whose expenditures have not been reduced proportionately, are expected to charge for their service what they did before the war. No business in America could live on such a basis, yet the boy candidate for senator would force it on the railroads. Moreover, the reduction of freight rates to pre-war levels would, it is clear, insure higher wages for railroad employes. His economic theories and generalities are offered with a lavish and free hand. They are in sharp contrast to the sound, constructive policies of Mr. Coolidge and his able secretary of the treasury.

The president's foreign policy is challenged, particularly his efforts to cooperate with Europe for Europe's recovery. The world court is denounced and American participation in it opposed. In some unexplained way we are to gather that this opposition will contribute to enlightened civilization and world peace.

A government which is reducing federal expenditures by hundreds of millions of dollars every few months—billions in the aggregate—with sweeping reductions in taxation, is hardly a subject of criticism by a youth like La Follette, particularly when the machine of which he is the candidate is burdening this state with excessive and mounting taxes and an extravagance that knows no bounds. The contrast between the government at Washington and the government at Madison can hardly be flattering to the latter in the opinion of unprejudiced, thinking observers. Yet, it is the government at Madison that he applauds and the government at Washington that he denounces.

The test of the primary election will not be so much the intelligence and capacity of young La Follette for the position of United States senator, as it will be the intelligence of the people of this state and their own capacity for weighing substance against chaff and achievements against empty words and futile promises.

THE BELGIAN SETTLEMENT

A debt settlement with Belgium has been practically completed. By the time this editorial appears it is not improbable that announcement of the agreement will be made, together with publication of the terms. In advance of the negotiations we have had the usual rumors of a deadlock, and differences between the two nations that could not be adjusted. The lack of foundation for these reports was shown by the announcement of the president following a conference with Mr. Smoot, chairman of the American commission, and Mr. Mellon, a member, that the negotiations were proceeding satisfactorily and that no deadlock had developed. It also was stated that an agreement was in sight, with the inference that there were only minor details to be settled.

Whether Belgium is to be granted larger concessions than were extended to Great Britain in the debt settlement with that country is not known, but no one would be surprised one way or the other. The public has gathered from semi-official discussion of the foreign debts that it was the policy of the government to treat each case separately on its own merits, giving due consideration to any unusual circumstances. It is expected that this attitude will be particularly emphasized in the negotiations with France, which are to follow those with Belgium.

The prevailing thought with the president and with the American commission, and we think with congress and the American people as well, has been formal recognition of the indebtedness by each nation which owes us money. So far as this phase of the matter was concerned, there was no disposition on our part to make concession of any kind. The debtors were to be held responsible for the full amount of the loans we had advanced them. Terms such as time, interest and possible a moratorium, were the only subjects we were prepared to submit negotiation. We think this fact has been clearly understood by all of the debtors, and that an understanding has in no small measure contributed to the willingness on their part to formally recognize the debts and ask for as favorable terms as might be secured.

One of the things which has confirmed the American people in their determination to require repayment has been failure of the allied nations to reduce their military establishment and the consequent financial burden they entailed. We have felt that if it were within their resources to maintain these excessive expenditures on armies and navies, it was within their ability to discharge their debts. It is not at all improbable that had a different treaty been written at Versailles and a spirit of accommodation and peaceful purpose prevailed among the former belligerents, accompanied by an honest and determined effort to repair their own misfortunes and to encourage their recuperation through economy, sentiment would have been awakened in this country in favor of ameliorating to some extent the debts. Unfortunately we would have cooperated with them, and while it is unlikely there would have been debt cancellations, it is not unlikely that there would have been debt reductions.

SHOE POLISH BLUES

According to a newspaper item which was dated July 11, an Evansville girl suffered serious poisoning from "nitrobenzene" which coaltar derivative was an ingredient of shoe polish which had been used on her shoes. The inference from the item is that the girl wore the shoes shortly after they had been polished with the polish referred to, and absorbed from the leather, through the skin of her feet, sufficient nitrobenzene to cause the poisoning. A characteristic of the poisoning being a grave alteration of the red blood corpuscles called "methemoglobinemia," interfering with their oxygen carrying function, so that the victim becomes cyanosed, that is, the skin, lips, nails turn blue. The Evansville girl happily recovered. There have been some fatal cases of poisoning by nitrobenzene (as the solvent should be spelled) applied in shoe dye, where the victim wore the shoes before the dye had dried out. Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, Wisconsin state toxicologist, reports nine cases of such shoe dye poisoning and cites a total of 47 cases recorded in medical literature. He says the solvent generally used in such dyes in this country is nitrobenzene, but anilin is often used instead in Europe and anilin, too, is poisonous and produces the same train of symptoms, methemoglobinemia, cyanosis, vertigo, headache, weakness, great weakness. These symptoms, by the way, are identical with the poisonous effects of various coal tar derivatives employed as internal medicines, such as acetanilide, bromoseltzer, phenacetin, antipyrin, aspirin, antilaminia and scores of other pain killer, fatigue killer, worry killer, cold killer, fever killer nostrums.

A few cases of accidental nitrobenzene or anilin poisoning have occurred through the spillings of these liquids on skin or clothing. Patients using anilin containing paints have been poisoned—and some chemists and physicians have jumped to the conclusion that the poison was absorbed through the skin. They used to imagine painters absorbed lead through the skin, but we know better now. Hair dyes containing anilin or its derivative paraphenylenediamine have caused poisoning in some cases, and no doubt doctors of hasty judgment have assumed that the paraphenylenediamine was absorbed through the scalp or hair or something in the hair. Even some of the foremost authorities on industrial hygiene and occupational disease, not to mention officials of our state industrial departments, have accepted this same plausible notion, that certain poisons are absorbed through the unbroken skin. But there is no physiological ground for such belief; there is no convincing experimental evidence to support it; there is not even good clinical or practical evidence that any such absorption occurs. Dr. Muehlberger himself, men- tioning in his published report that "many cases of shoe dye poisoning have been observed in which the feet of the victim were not discolored by the dye, indicating that the pigment (dye) has not reached the skin, though the solvent (nitrobenzene or anilin) has been absorbed in quantities sufficient to cause marked cyanosis and other symptoms of intoxication." How come, if the stuff never touched the skin? Why, that is easy enough, of course the solvent is very volatile, and the warmth of the feet hastens the evaporation of the stuff, and it is inhaled by the victim. The same explanation applies to cases of accidental poisoning from these or other liquids spilled on clothing or on skin. Ditto for hair dye poisoning. Ditto for lead poisoning in painters printers or other occupations. Ditto for any known industrial or occupational poisoning.

COLLECTORS OF STAMPS PROFIT
BY U. S. ERRORS

Inverted Mistakes on Bi-color
Postage Is Most Valuable to Philatelists

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
Washington, D. C.—Consider the philatelist; how contrarily he works! Queen things have always been done in the name of collecting and all collectors have come to be regarded as having rules of their own by which they live and operate. But nothing they have done is more contrary to usual laws than the manner in which they have turned mistakes into fortunes. Since time was, people have professed to derive indirect profit from their mistakes but the collector actually does reap material gain from errors.

Where do all the rare stamps come from? For what does the philatelist value them? There are the old stamps, of course, such as the postmaster stamps of the days before there were government issues, and there are stamps valuable for their sheer beauty of design and execution. There are the stamps of foreign countries which have had various political experiences such as the Alsace and Lorraine issues of 1870-1871. These are interesting as history.

But an exceedingly important and, to the layman, surprising source of rare stamps is the error. In every issue of stamps errors occur and every error increases the value of a stamp for the philatelist, but the error he loves best and the one for which he watchfully waits whenever a new issue of stamps is the inverted error. The inverted error is always liable to occur when the issue is a bi-color job which means that the sheets of stamps must be printed twice.

The first inverted error on record was made in 1863 in the 15c, 24c and 30c values. Some of these got into the hands of collectors before they were found and called in. An unused copy of the 15c value was sold in New York recently for $4,100 and an unused 30c value fetched $3,500. Stamps, like eggs, are valuable in proportion as they are scarce.

RISE IN VALUE
In the 1901 Pan-American set there were inverted errors in the 1, 2, and 3 cent values. These have never demanded prices in four figures yet, they will rise in value as they disappear into collections not on the market.

The most sensational error that has ever been made in the United States was the famous "5 cent red error" of 1915. Its value is not yet great because it had such a wide distribution. It was called in. The price before was $10 to $14, according to whether the stamp has ten perforations or eleven, or no perforations at all. The 5 cent error is interesting on account of the improbable way in which the mistake came about.

When the plates were ready for printing a proof was pulled and submitted to the inspector for approval. On proof of plate 7942 the inspector marked three impressions as lighter in tone than the other. These three were ordered removed from the plate and new impressions made. When the printer called for the roller to make these few impressions he received by mistake the roller for the 5 cent value which greatly resembles the 2 cent roller upside down.

Nobody caught the mistake and the plate was approved and put to press. From March 7 until May 2 the sale of the issue went on before the error discovered. Almost 50,000 sheets had been printed in that time and on each

USED PLATINUM
FOR FISH HOOKS

Metal Utilized by Indians Was Found in Spanish Gold Mines in South America

From The New York World.
Not so many years ago platinum was not considered particularly desirable but today it is of more value than gold. This metal was first found in the Spanish gold mines of Central and South America but later in larger quantities in the Ural mountains. At first it was a mere curiosity which the Indians used for making fish hooks but when it was discovered to be the only metal upon which no single acid had an effect it came into use in every chemical laboratory.

The only acid that will touch platinum is a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric. Platinum expands less by heat than any other metal and possesses an extremely high melting point. It does not rust either in air or water and has a great power of resistance to electricity. It is also the heaviest of all substances with the exception of the very rare metals osmium and iridium. It is valuable to the photographer for the production of pictures known as platinum types. A little is found in the United States, still less in Australia, but recently Canada has come into the market as a source of supply.

There is the danger from the standpoint of the bureau of engraving and printing, and the hope from the standpoint of the philatelist, that in the second printing at least one sheet will be turned upside down and come out with an inverted center. The last time the philatelic world had a thrill of this kind was in 1918 when the bi-color aero stamp issue was printed.

A young private stamp collector picked up fifteen thousand dollars for the error made in this issue. The collector was Mr. Robey of Washington, D. C. who is a jeweler by trade and a philatelist by choice. He had been watching for the appearance of the new issue and when it came, he started out to buy a 24 cent aero stamp. Sure enough, in a little branch post office of Washington, he discovered his error—a stamp with its airplane inverted. He bought the entire pane of a hundred stamps and then called the clerk's attention to the error. The issue was called in and a hunt made for other errors by the post office officials, but no more were found. The other three panes of the sheet of errors were discarded at the bureau.

Mr. Robey sold his block of stamps to Mr. Eugene Klein of Philadelphia for $15,000 and the dealer in turn sold them to Colonel Green, son of Hetty Green, for $20,000. Colonel Green broke the block, kept some for his own collection and put the others on sale on the regular market. They bring $750 each now and the stamp is said to have a "good future". Which means, hold on to your 24 cent error if you have one.

The philatelist must wish sometimes that our government were a little more obliging in this respect, since errors are seldom made in the United States. One authoritative philatelist says there are indications that foreign governments are more willing to cooperate with the stamp collectors by turning out a respectable number of errors in every issue. Uncle Sam seems rather to resent the collector's greedy approval of his mistakes and refuses to make more than he can help.

10-FOOT LENS IN HUGE TELESCOPE

Instrument to Be Operated at Seattle Will Make Visible
400,000,000 Stars

From The New York Herald Tribune.

The largest telescope in the world is soon to be in operation at Seattle, Wash. It will be a reflector, with a mirror 120 inches in diameter. The telescope itself and the great observatory now being erected to house it will be the gift of Charles H. Fyfe. The mammoth specimen, the largest ever cast in the world, is being completed by T. S. M. Shearman, Canadian astronomer and telescope builder, in specially constructed shops in Vancouver, B. C.

The largest existing telescope is the instrument at the Mount Wilson observatory, mounting a 100-inch specimen. The next in size, 73 inches across, is at Little Sanich, B. C. Canada.

The Fyfe observatory is remarkable for several features. It is the first erected primarily for public education. The mirror is the first large optical lens ever cast in the North American continent.

The observatory itself will contain a collection of astronomical photographs gathered from every part of the world.

There are about 5,000 stars visible on a clear night to the naked eye. A 60-inch reflector makes 219,000,000 stars visible.

The Mount Wilson specimen brings into view 220,000,000, while the big Fyfe telescope will, according to conservative estimates, make visible at least 400,000,000 stars of the twentieth magnitude.

in the number of insects and other invertebrates which they eat.

Q. Are there some holes in which the holes are made by worms? J. C.

A. The bureau of dairying does not believe that there is any cheese in which the holes are made by worms. Most cheese in which holes are found is made in such a way as to develop the holes, which produce a specific organism which causes holes.

Q. What is the approximate cost per mile of an underground trolley system similar to that used in Washington? H. B. McR.

A. A local street railway company says that the approximate cost per mile for underground trolley depends on what is to be moved, the number of sewers, pipe lines, etc. For extension work the cost at present ranges from $150,000 to $175,000 per mile of single track.

Q. When did the custom start of celebrating mardi gras in New Orleans? C. E. G.

A. The custom of the carnival originated with the early French residents and some of the features are patterned after the fetes of Paris. From the earliest times the carnival was celebrated with high revelry. The leading figure of the season is King Rex, who rules the city. Mardi gras has been celebrated in New Orleans for nearly a hundred years.

Q. I saw a reference to the great Mitsui family of Japan. Who are they? T. H. H.

A. They are owners of the mercantile house of that name established by Tokutomi (1633-1706) in Tokyo, and have been identified with almost every large concern of industrial and economic interest in Japan.

Q. What is a dealer in foreign money called? F. A. M.

A. A dealer in, or manual on, monies of foreign countries or bills of exchange is a cambist. A numismatist is one who studies the science of coins and makes collections of them.

A. Canada has a water area of 125,755 square miles as compared with 52,830 square miles for the United States.

Q. How long has Labor day been observed? C.

A. The celebration of Labor day was inaugurated by the Knights of Labor with a parade in New York in 1882. The first law making the day a legal holiday was passed in Colorado in 1893.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRECOT TO THE LITTLE MARQUISE CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

As I "take my pen in hand" to write you, dear secret confidante, I wonder what your "problems were in that far off time when you were the sweetheart of a king.

Were you very unhappy when you saw your kingly lover devoting himself to some other woman? Or, perhaps, he did take love to other women, for that is considered not only the prerogative of kings, but of all other men.

And, by the same token, you must have seen it, for notwithstanding that pleasing fable that love is blind, any woman who loves a man can tell when another woman is in love with him, if she sees them together.

What did you do, little Marquise? Did you reproach your sweetheart and brave the anger of a king or did you keep it all to yourself and pretend to him that you did not believe that the man whom you had loved and who had vowed that he loved you could not possibly be disloyal to you?

I believe, little Marquise, that many a clever woman has brought her lover back to her feet by making him believe that she could not think that he would in any way betray her trust in him. So I am quite sure that you never showed, even of your heart was breaking that you were the least bit jealous of your king.

I think Ruth knew that the letter I wrote to Jack would bring him to me immediately for she persuaded me to send it to him by special messenger, and as soon as I had sent it she made some excuse to leave.

I didn't want her to go, for I felt that if Jack did not come, if something happened that he did not get the letter, or if he decided not to come, I should go mad with waiting. Thus you see I am confessing that I wanted my husband. Although I tried to give him his choice of staying away from me or coming back to me on a purely friendly basis, my heart I knew would be broken if he did not come.

It didn't seem to me, however, that the boy had had time to get there with the note when a taxi drew up in front of the apartment. As soon as I heard a taxi stop in front of the door, I looked out of the window.

Poor old Jack! I could tell from the very set of his shoulders that he had been and was still very unhappy. My heart went out to him in pity. It seemed to me so unfortunate that any man would give up the very best of life, the very sweetest, truest and fondest emotion he could possibly have for something that could do nothing else but break down his character and weaken his will.

As Jack stepped out of the motor he raised his eyes to my window and then his shoulders sunk a little lower and with lagging steps he walked within the door below.

A complete list of all girls who received swimming awards at the Appleton Womens club camp at Onaway island, with the prize they won has been compiled by the swimming counselors of the camp. THE JACKAW BIRD ARRIVES

"Hello! Is this Doctor Bill's hospital?" called a bird with a croaky voice.

Nancy threw open the door and looked out. "Yes, it is," she called. "Who is it and where are you from?"

A dark little bird, as black as a crow nor so big, flew down from a tree and landed over. "It's me and I came from home," he croaked hoarsely.

Nancy laughed. "Now I know all about you," she said kindly. "Come on in and see Doctor Bill. You seem to be hurt."

She picked him up on her finger and carried him inside.

"Hello, here!" cried Doctor Bill when he saw the visitor. "If it isn't Johnny Jackdaw. What has happened to you, Johnny? Been stealing again? You areas bad as your cousin Mike Magpie! What was it this time? A diamond necklace?"

If you'll just fix my toenail first," said Johnny Jackdaw. "I'll tell you all about it." And he stuck out his foot which the little doctor man examined carefully.

"Why the nail is gone?" he exclaimed. "How did that happen?" The little bird shivered. "I can't bear to think of it," he said. "It was awful. But I learned a good lesson and I'll never steal anything again as long as I live."

"Aha! I thought so," said Doctor Bill. "But there! I must fix up your poor sore foot, and you can tell me about it afterwards. Stealing is bad business, sir."

Nancy held the bandages and Nick held the salve, while the bird doctor fixed Johnny Jackdaw's sore foot.

Johnny said "Ouch!" about six times, but by and by it was over, and he said it felt as good as new, his foot did, and he would be careful and keep the bandage clean and dry and everything.

"That's two promises you have made today," Doctor Bill reminded him. "I hope you will keep both. But let us hear why you aren't going to steal any more and about the lesson you have learned."

"All right," said Johnny Jackdaw. "Here goes!"

"One day I was playing around with some of my friends in an old tree in the woods, when suddenly I looked down on the ground and saw something shining."

"Just a certain way I looked at it, it would shine. If I moved my head an inch the shine would go away. I had to sit right in one particular spot and look a certain way down among the dead leaves on the ground to see the shiny thing at all."

"I looked around at my companions to see if they had noticed anything. But not one of them had seen a thing. I could tell by the way they acted. Jackdaws talk a lot and if they had seen anything glittering they would have shouted about it at once. They are like magpies—just as you say, Doctor Bill. No sense at all."

"What did you do?" asked the Twins who hated to wait so long to hear a story.

"I had a brilliant idea," said Johnny Jackdaw. "I decided to wait until nearly sundown when the other birds were thinking of going to bed, then slip back and investigate and see what the shiny thing was and keep it for myself."

The street, providing the county does its share, would be paved next summer.

Luncheon Club Agrees to Furnish Campsite if City Will Buy Property

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—New London is to have a new camp site. This was definitely decided at the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening. Action was taken after a large delegation from the Lions club presented a proposition for the addition to the city's growing list of conveniences.

The Lions club, through its spokesmen, Giles H. Putnam, Fred Archibald, and the Rev. J. Richard Olson, suggested that two plots of ground owned by Jacob Werner and W. J. Butler, which are on the north bank of the Wolf river, on the Northport road, and within the city limits, be purchased for the purpose of providing the new camp site. These lots, upon which the Lions club secured options, sell for $400 and $300 respectively. As soon as the city would arrange for the purchase of the lots, the club would proceed to construct rest rooms, fountains, cooking places, tables, seats, fill in the ground, cut the grass, and do everything to convert the place into a convenient and attractive camp site. This work would be done entirely by the members of the club themselves. This plot includes about 7 acres. The Lions club would procure the services of a landscape gardener from the University of Wisconsin, who would give them instructions as to how to go about the work in order to get the best results. The mayor and council approved the plans, but stated that the land could not possibly be bought before the budget was made for 1926, and probably not paid for before about the first of the year. This was satisfactory to the Lions club, and so the council resolved to accept the options on the two plots, and pay for them on Feb. 1, 1926. The Lions club was extended a vote of thanks for its willingness to aid in establishing the camp. A committee of Aldermen Thomas and Meinhardt was appointed to work with the Lions' committee. The city will furnish dirt for filling in the plot, and if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the owners of the plots, work will be begun at once.

MISS RICE REENGAGED
AS NURSE FOR NEXT YEAR

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Miss Loretta Rice was reengaged as city nurse for next year by the city council at its session Tuesday night. This action was taken on a recommendation by the board of health, that she be reappointed at a salary of $120 per month, and that she be allowed $20 per month for the upkeep of her car. The car upkeep, however, was omitted, due to the fact that they were under the impression that most cities did not provide it for their nurses, and that they would rather wait and investigate, than make the contract immediately. Accordingly, the city clerk was authorized to make inquiry to determine whether it was the custom to provide $20 per month for the upkeep of cars driven by city nurses. Miss Rice will begin work on Sept. 1, and continue for 10 months.

The Secret of Success
Depends on Health

It is a fact that only about one person out of three enjoys good health. That occasional headache; that tired, exhausted feeling, loss of appetite, the casual cold—all these are danger signals you should heed. Nature is warning you of impending sickness. Seemingly trivial symptoms tell of serious troubles taking root in your body. And yet, ninety-nine people out of every hundred will absolutely ignore these danger signals. As long as they are not flat on their backs, they will fool themselves into believing that they are all right. I want to talk to you. The fact that you have been treated elsewhere without benefit does not discourage me in the least; I am helping men and women every day, affecting cures, many times in cases pronounced incurable by others, so that I feel sure I can do much for you. My counsel will cost you nothing, but my charges for treatment will be reasonable and not more than you will be willing to pay for the benefits conferred.

FREE CONSULTATION!

I treat all forms of chronic diseases: NERVE DISORDERS, STOMACH and HEART troubles, URINARY, KIDNEY, BLADDER and SKIN diseases; LIVER COMPLAINTS, DROPSY, GOITRE, PISTULA, PILES, CONSTIPATION, CATARRH, ASTHMA, RHEUMATISM, AND ALL DISEASES PECULIAR TO WOMEN.

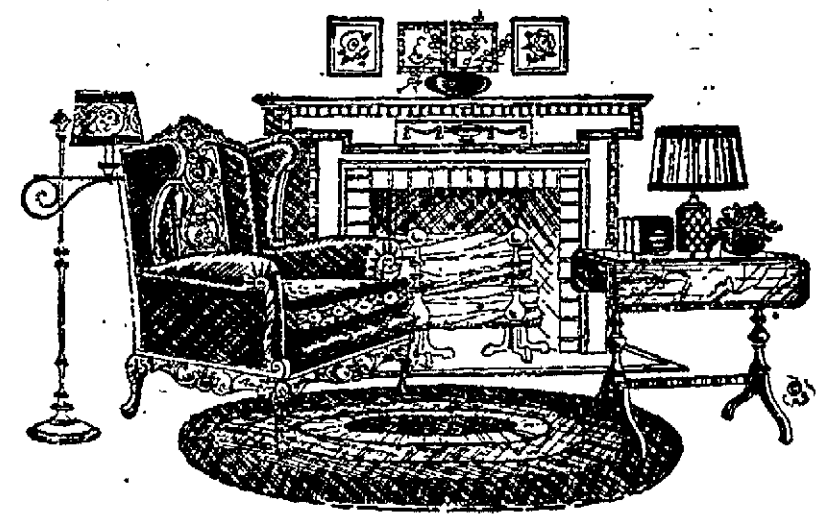

Your troubles show your mistakes, and this kind of experience is a terrible teacher; but STRENGTH and HEALTH can be had. Consult me. A physician whose SUCCESS is due to SPECIALIZED TRAINING, augmented by EXPERIENCE, is qualified to give definite, practical aid to sufferers. RESULTS COUNT. It is planned to have the Crystal lake boys as guests of the local troop at Lone Pine hill headquarters some time before school starts.

GIRL DRIVES DEATH CAR

When police in San Francisco looked for the automobile which killed Solomon Simon they found it to belong to Miss Gerelyn Hoehner, stenographer at the Spaniard. She admitted having "struck something" at the corner where Simon died but did not think her car had hit a man. Now the girl is in mourning for her victim pending her trial on a manslaughter charge. Photo shows the girl and her mother, visibly grief-stricken.

Mr. Davis discussed the growth of The Post-Crescent in the last five years and attributed its success largely to the prosperity of the community.

STAGE AND SCREEN

"THE SPANIARD" PLEASING STORY OF SPANISH LOVE
The Paramount picture, "The Spaniard," which is now showing at Fischer's Appleton Theatre is a story of a bull-fighter, hero of Spain, and an English society girl, a born coquette, always looking for new hearts to conquer. She meets and

Erases Wrinkles in Less Than 15 Minutes

Scientists have at last taken up seriously the problem of removing wrinkles and age lines. Many experiments have been made. The result indicates that the "tarkroot method" is the best because it produces immediate results with perfect safety and comfort. It consists merely in spreading over the face a mixture of powdered tarkroot, one spoonful, and lemon juice, one spoonful. In your mirror, before your very eyes, you can watch the wrinkles and sagging literally melt away—in less than 15 minutes.

The sensation from this brief treatment is most refreshing. The effect is far better than that produced by the most expert massage. Tarkroot is as harmless you could eat it. And the cost per treatment is trifling—less than three cents when purchased in the original package at any drug store.

TROPICAL SCENERY IN "PORTS OF CALL"

If you have sailed the Seven Seas you will recall those tropical ports where men wait for ships bearing news that never comes. To those men who have missed too many boats, the word "home" is a torment that would turn to rapture if they could again set foot in their homeland. There is nothing more mournful than the wailing whistle of a departing steamer to a man who cannot return to his native shores; nothing more heart cheering than the triumphant blast of the siren when he is on board a vessel homeward bound. "Ports of Call," the William Fox picture to be shown at the New Bijou today and Thursday, deals with the adventures of a "salty" way who wins his way into the heart of the woman he loves Edmund Lowe is the star, the dramatic screen offering having been directed by Denison Clift. If you have never been across the blue Pacific, you will like this.

"PERFECT LOVER OF THE SCREEN IS HERE"

Ronald Colman, who was nominated by Samuel Goldwyn a few months ago as the "perfect screen lover of 1925," justifies the producer's faith in his love-making technique by revealing a wide variety of new methods of wooing in the new George Fitzmaurice production, "His Supreme Moment," which First National is offering at the Elite Theatre for the last time tonight.

Colman, who shares featured honors with Blanche Sweet in this picture, is called upon by the development of the story to make persistent and red-hot love to his fellow player throughout four-fifths of the picture. He does it successfully — and he never repeats in one episode the love-making methods used in an earlier sequence of the story!

BARBARA LA MARR IN HER BEST ROLE

Filming of the screen version of John Galsworthy's "The White Monkey," a First National picture starring Barbara La Marr, has been completed at the Sawyer-Lubin Fort Lee, N. J., Studios. The strong cast appearing in support of Miss La Marr includes Thomas Holding, George Marion, Charles Emmett Mack, Flora Le Breton, Henry Victor, Tammany Young and Colin Campbell. The photoplay, said to be perhaps the best vehicle yet given Miss La Marr, was directed by Phil Rosen, whose direction of "Abraham Lincoln" is one of the memorable achievements of screen history. "The White Monkey" will be shown at the Elite Theatre Thursday and Friday.

"The woman does not exist whom I cannot tame!" boasts The Spaniard, handsome, aristocratic, lover of many fair ones.

And so the duel of hearts and wits between them starts.

2,814 EMPLOYEES IN 74 FACTORIES IN APPLETON

3 MILLIONS IN WAGES, SALARIES PAID EVERY YEAR

Manufactured Product Aggregates $16,328,000, U. S. Survey Shows

Seventy-four different manufacturing plants are in operation in Appleton providing labor for 2,814 wage earners. That at least was the industrial state of this city in 1923, according to a census of manufactures completed by the United States bureau of census with the cooperation of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

These 74 plants paid in wages a total of $3,065,792, and the value of its products amounted to $16,328,000, according to the report just received at the chamber of commerce office.

A study of the report is being made by the committee on industry and transportation.

Both in number of men employed and in the amount of its products, the paper industry leads all others, it being about eight times stronger than the next largest industry. Paper goods industry is second both in wage earners and products. The next largest industry in point of men employed appear in the following order: Furniture, foundry, and machine shop products, knit goods and lumber. In point of value of products turned out the order after paper goods is: Foundry and machine shop goods, lumber, knit goods and furniture.

OTHER LEADERS

It is understood, however, that wire weaving, woolen and felt goods and gas industries also belong in the foregoing list of leaders, but these industries could not be classified without disclosing the operations of the individual establishments, it was announced.

The leading kinds of products turned out in Appleton include: Artificial stone products, baked goods, foundry and machine shop products, furniture, lumber, paper and wood pulp, paper goods, printed matter, knit goods, tobacco.

Other industries are: Agricultural implements, metal goods, beverages, boxes, brooms, butter, car and electric railroad repair shop, sheet iron shop, cotton goods, electric machinery, engines, felt goods, gas, ice cream, marble and stone work, mattresses and bed springs, automobile bodies, optical goods, pumps, soap, stoves, toys, wirework, wood, products and woolen goods. There was one plant each of the foregoing, except wire weaving, three, and beverages, two.

The three large industries on which no separate statistics could be given—gas, wire and woolen and felt goods—put out products aggregating approximately $1,800,000.

Paper and wood pulp manufacture provided work for 1,179 employees earning $1,280,323 in six establishments, and their products aggregated $8,725,536 in value, the report states.

Other industries reported the following: Artificial stone products, three plants, employing 12 men, earning $14,015, and making products valued at $64,481; six bakeries, 28 men, $35,334 wage and $177,548 in value of products; six foundry and machine shops, 216 men, $293,541 wage and $1,019,026 in products; three furniture factories, 218 men, $172,122 wages and $474,660 in products; three lumber and timber plants, 104 men, $104,063 wage and $577,709 in products; three lumber and planing mill, products plants, 25 men, $12,576 wage and $226,056 in products; three paper goods plants, 263 employees, $251,253 wage and $1,801,814 in products; six printing plants, 51 men, $87,916 wage and $345,742 products; four tobacco and cigar factories, six employees, $4,572 wage and $25,324 in products; three knit goods plants, 153 wage earners, $112,243 wage and $478,614 in products.

All other industrial plants, of which there were 23, employed 555 wage earners at a total wage of $667,584 turning out products totaling $2,858,761. Only such plants were considered that had products of more than $5,000 in one year. An error seems to have been made in the standing of the knit goods industry, as there are four of such plants in Appleton instead of three.

CITIES MARK ROOFS TO ASSIST ARMEN

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C. — Advertising for the benefit of those who ride in the air is seen by army air service officers as a possibility.

Thus far this branch of "letting the world know" is confined to cities that blazon their names literally from the housetops. This is coming to be recognized as a vital factor in flying, and is being readily to discern his whereabouts simply by looking over his cockpit to where giant white letters, painted on the roof of a large building, gaze up at him. The number of communities that are thus setting forth their names is substantially on the increase, army air men say.

Large cities have their own landing marks, the Washington monument and the dome of the capitol being two of the best anywhere.

While in some cases the name of the community is painted on the roof of the railroad station, officers said they believed that transportation branch slow in favoring that method sensing probable competition from the airplane in the future.

65 BUY BUILDING, LOAN STOCK IN ONE MONTH

Installment stock in Appleton Building and Loan association, aggregating $186,000 was purchased by 65 persons during the month of July, it was announced Tuesday by George H. Beckley, secretary of the association. This was the largest number of purchasers of installment stock in any one month since the organization of the association. Decision of directors to pay 8 per cent interest on installment stock is believed to be the reason for the demand for this security.

M'GOVERN LAUDS ECONOMY POLICY AT WASHINGTON

Republican Candidate for Senate Vacancy Announces Part of Platform

Milwaukee—Francis E. McGovern, Republican candidate for the office of United States Senator from Wisconsin, has announced a platform in which he commends the effort of the federal administration at Washington to reduce expenses of government and retire war indebtedness as rapidly as possible. He favors restoration of the federal trade commission to its original purpose and the early completion of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence waterways project.

Among things the platform advocates:

"Restoration of the federal trade commission to its original purpose.

"The opening of the proposed deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

"Adequate national defense, especially maintenance of sufficient airplane and submarine equipment as indispensable arms of the service.

"An honest, impartial enforcement of existing liquor laws, leaving to the people full right to change these laws from time to time as they may see fit.

"Reformation of currency so as to make the unit of value more stable.

"Conservation of natural resources.

"Opposition to the entry of the United States into the League of Nations, or adoption by it of the so-called Geneva protocol.

"Maintenance of the foreign policies known as the Monroe Doctrine and an Open Door in the Orient. Traditionally friendly relations with China should be maintained and freedom from forcible foreign exploitation should be frankly recognized.

"Support of every practicable measure reasonably calculated to restore prosperity to the farmers of our country.

The record of his administration as governor of Wisconsin upholds, says Mr. McGovern, his attitude toward labor.

THEATRICAL MANAGERS AT ODDS WITH ACTORS

By Associated Press
Berlin—Fears are entertained of a German theatrical season next year without any stars. The leading actors have organized solidly in opposition to the managers' agreement not to pay any actor or singer more than 300 gold marks, about $75, a night.

Stage folks who have not "arrived" regard $75 big pay for a night's work and are watching the battle from the side lines. Managers insist that the actors have become unreasonable in their salary demands and that the German theatres are on the verge of bankruptcy. The leading actors say the managers are treating them as if they were cattle.

UTILITIES WAGE FIGHT IN COURT

North American Company Contract Is Called "Unholy Alliance"

Green Bay—"Bad faith," "Invasion of our territory," and "an unholy alliance" were some of the charges hurled back and forth by attorneys for the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company and the Wisconsin Public Service corporation when the hearing on condemnation proceedings instituted by the W. G. & E., to secure lands in Brown county for a transmission line got under way before County Judge Carlton Merrill Tuesday.

W. P. S. OWNS LAND

The Wisconsin Public Service corporation as the owner of one of the tracts of land which the Wisconsin Gas and Electric, a subsidiary of the North American, is seeking to condemn, was represented by the firms of Fairchild, North Parker and Be of this city and Bouk, Klumwin, Hulton and Dempsey of Oshkosh. Other land owners were represented by Cady, Strehlow and Kaftan, Martin, Martin, Clifford and McHale, Archie McCombs, Sol P. Huntington, Leo Fox, Chittler and Al. Clason, Oconto Shaw, Muscat and Van Dyke of Milwaukee appeared for the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company.

The transmission line in question is planned to extend from Plymouth to Niagara. Over part of this route, the towers of the Northern Paper Mills would be used, through a contract entered into between the local mills and the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company, in March of this year. The contract also provided, it is claimed, that should the lines of the Northern fall at any time, power for the local concern would be supplied over the lines of the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company and vice versa. This is interpreted by the Wisconsin Public Service as an invasion of the public utilities territory to which it is given exclusive control under the public utilities law.

This contract is an evidence of bad faith on the part of the W. G. & E. attorneys for the other corporation claimed this morning.

COUNCIL AGREES TO BUILD BRIDGE ON TAYCO STREET

Engineer Instructed to Prepare Plans for Bascule Type Construction

Menasha—The first actual steps toward building a bridge over the Fox river at Tayco-st were taken Tuesday evening by the city council when a resolution providing for construction of a bridge was adopted unanimously. The resolution provided for a bridge of the bascule type, 56 feet wide with a 40-foot roadway and an 8-foot walk on each side. The city engineer was ordered to get prepared plans showing construction, decorations and material to be used. A bridge very similar to that in Green Bay which the council inspected last Saturday is wanted.

The council decided to allow two manufacturers of chlorinating machinery to place their machines in the waterworks plant on a 60-day trial with no cost to the city and at the end of this time the machine which gives the best satisfaction will be accepted.

A 60-foot extension to the water main on Lock-st was ordered to be constructed of 24-inch iron pipe, the work to be done by the Menasha Boiler works. The contract involves about $600.

Cars no longer will be allowed to park along the Washington-st bridge. It was decided by the council. An effort will be made to secure the terrace on the west side of Washington-st, at the south approach for a parking place.

A vote of thanks was tendered members of the Green Bay city council for their service and information furnished the Menasha council last Saturday afternoon when the local body journeyed to that city to inspect the bascule bridge.

BOY, 6, DROWNS WHILE FISHING IN FOX RIVER

Child's Body, Still Grasping Pole, Is Recovered Just Before Midnight

Menasha—Archie Parker, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Parker, was drowned Tuesday evening in the Fox river. His body was found at 11:30 near the Tayco-st bridge after a search of nearly six hours. The little fellow had been fishing in the river as he still grasped a small pole when the body was found. He had been gone from the home during the afternoon but was not missed until he did not return to his supper. A search was started. It was at first thought that he had accompanied some older persons to High Cliff as something had been mentioned to that effect during the day and the boy was under the shrubbery in the neighborhood of the bridge and did not see him come out. This information led to a search of the river where the body was found. This was the second boy in this family to meet death by drowning. Lyall, an older son was drowned several years ago in about the same locality. The parents, three brothers, Ellery, Gordon and Vernon, and two sisters, Rose and Elleen, survive.

WOMEN AGITATE TO ELIMINATE "OBEY"

London—Demands that the marriage service, which was "inspired by the ideals of the time of Henry VIII," be revised, have been made upon the national assembly of the Church of England by the National Union of Societies for Equal Citizenship. The Women's Freedom league also has come out for a change.

The marriage service is antiquated, according to Miss Florence Underwood, secretary of the Freedom league, who contends that any formula which indicates less than absolute equality between men and women.

"We do not presume to suggest to the church any particular alternative form of words," said Miss Underwood, "as that is the business of the church and we leave it to the bishops to consider. But we certainly do object to the word 'obey.' It is most assuredly high time that a service was evolved which, while retaining all the beauty and sacredness of the one now used, would demand precisely the same from one party as from the other."

SPARE TREES, OWNERS PLEAD WITH COUNCIL

Ask Aldermen to Build Sidewalk So Shade Trees Will Not Be Destroyed

Neenah—A plea for saving old shade trees on E. Forest-ave and Ninth-st, made by property owners who have been ordered by the city council to place a sidewalk on the east side of Ninth-st between Nicolet-blvd and Hewitt-st, took up the Tuesday evening mayor's T.T. stand biggest share of the Tuesday evening council meeting. L. J. Pinkerton and E. J. Lachmann said trees on their property will either have to be cut down or removed to make way for a walk as petitioned for by property owners, and these gentlemen appeared before the meeting in an endeavor to cooperate with the aldermen in order to save these trees. It was the opinion of the council and the aldermen to the committee on walks to tow the petition was referred some time ago, that there must be a walk on that side of the street as the initial steps had already been taken before the remonstrance against it had been presented to the council.

It was suggested the walk be built around the trees but some of the aldermen said they would not vote for a crooked walk. The aldermen referred to property on Pine-st where larger trees than those on Ninth-st had to be chopped down in order to build a walk and said there should be no preference shown in such matters. In order to get the matter to a head more time was granted for investigation as Mr. Lachmann offered to move his trees to some other part of the yard but could not do this work until winter.

H. J. Niles, submitted the lowest bid for repainting, redecorating and cleaning the city hall and was given the job. The committee on parks and public buildings presented these bids. Chris. Christensen for $573.46; Fred Nielsen, $645 and H. J. Niles, $590. The work will be started at once.

Al Martin asked for water service on W. Smith-st for two or three property owners but at the present time there are not enough applicants to warrant the building of a long main to connect with the main on Torrey-st. The "U" turn' commercial on Wisconsin-ave and Elmerialist on Wisconsin-ave and Elmerialist on Wisconsin-ave was given more time until the committee can get together on the matter.

Two zoning ordinances which recently were referred to the committee on ordinances and printing will have to go back to the planning commission for revision as the provisions did not meet with the committee's approval.

GIBBS AVOIDS EXTREMES IN NEWEST NOVEL

"Soundings" Is Vivid Portrayal of Honest Life and Honorable Living

By ELEANOR WING

The quotation around which the story of "Soundings," the first serious novel of A. Hamilton Gibbs, published in March by Little, Brown and Company, is woven, is a brief concise resume of the plot. "Life is an uncharted ocean. The cautious mariner must needs take many soundings ere he conduct his barque to port in safety," says the author, and he proceeds to prove it.

His method is splendid. Nancy Hawthorne's life is the ocean of the story and many soundings are taken before the woman, Nancy, discovers herself. Gibbs doesn't choose an extreme type of modern girl for his heroine. In fact, the reader suspects at times that the author does not want Nancy to be a heroine at all. A young girl who is natural and very honest, and whose only companion has been a very wise and philosophical father, is the material with which the story is begun.

But Nancy's growth morally and mentally is the outcome of the "compelled life." The very fact that the girl has grown up under the tutelage of an astoundingly honest and strong man as Jim Hawthorne, her father, presupposes the outcome of whatever battle Nancy is called upon to wage within herself.

Gibbs, who is the youngest brother of Sir Philip Gibbs, novelist and war correspondent, and Cosmo Hamilton, novelist and playwright, has had another book published, called "Gun Fodder." The latter work is the story of his war service in Serbia and in France, and is a powerful plea for peace. He was educated at College de St. Malo, France, and St. John's college, Oxford, where he rowed on the college crew and won his "blue" boxing against Cambridge and started an undergraduate weekly newspaper, The Tuesday Review. Mr. Gibbs is now living in New York city and is devoting his time to writing. His varied experiences have made his style versatile and his command of English remarkably good.

As for characters in this latest novel, Jim Hawthorne is in reality a finer person than his daughter. One has the feeling that he belongs to a generation earlier than that of Nancy.

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

UNWRITTEN TRAGEDY

It is well known that the dearest wish of Charles Lamb during nearly the whole of his rather sad life was to write a great tragedy. But he couldn't do it. His genius was not dramatic and although he was one of the best critics of his day of the dramas of Shakespeare and his contemporaries he could not write a drama himself but failed miserably every time he tried.

So it is perhaps all the more ironic that Lamb, who could not write a tragedy although he would almost have been willing to sell his soul for it, lived a tragedy most of his life which, if its essence could have been translated into dramatic literature, would have made a play as poignant as any that a dramatist ever penned.

When he was still a very young man, Lamb's sister Mary, whom he loved with a devotion such as seldom exists between brother and sister, stabbed their mother to death with a table knife in a fit of temporary insanity. There was the tempo of tragedy at the very dawn of manhood and that act alone would be sufficient to darken some lives. But for Lamb it was only a beginning.

UNDER SHADOW

Mary Lamb all her life was subject to fits of insanity, and Lamb practically all his life was her guardian, living always under the shadow of this menace of madness. Charles and Mary became expert in detecting the signs of its coming, when the brother would have the sister removed to a madhouse where she remained until the weeks or sometimes months of insanity had passed. Then she would return home and resume life with her brother. That kind of life continued for 30 years or more.

Because of Mary Lamb's condition, Charles Lamb never married, devoting his whole life to the care of his sister, who, it must be stated in mitigation of the tragedy, gave her

And his cynical, courageous analysis of himself and his place in his daughter's life is worthy of the most modern of modern thinking.

War which is to Gibbs, as it is to many authors, the melting pot of all the base emotions as well as of the finest ones, refines Nancy, Jim, and Bob to their best potentialities. Nancy is not "reborn" as writers often term the character awakening which comes with a crash. Rather, her life is unfolded in its full vividly after war sacrifice and faith born of disillusionment have tried her to the fullest extent.

brother a devotion in the periods between insanity that is one of the finest things in the history of literature. She was a writer herself and in more than one instance she collaborated with her brother, and the two led a life devoted to the pursuit of art that was very delightful.

But at best it was not the life that any man would willingly choose. Lamb had more than one brief romance in early manhood which he later embalmed in delightful passages in his essays but he saw from the beginning that marriage for him was an impossibility. He could not leave his sister to her fate; he had to take the place of husband and guardian to her and he accepted his fate with a courage that is still an inspiration after the lapse of a hundred years.

TOO PERSONAL

All the elements of a great tragedy are present in the real life history of Charles Lamb but it apparently never occurred to him that he was living a tragedy; or if it occurred to him, he must considered it too poignantly personal to translate it into literature. Some writers have been able to coin "horris" agony into literature but Lamb's courage was the kind that makes a joke of misfortune.

There is hardly a more personal writer in the whole range of English literature than Charles Lamb but never would the reader guess from his essays and sketches that he was living all his life in the shadow of a mad-house as it were. There are few things more genuinely cheerful than Lamb's essays even though they are made up of the stuff of life that was centered in tragedy from which there was no escape for him until his death. He gives numerous character drawings of himself, of his sister Mary under the name of "Bridget Elia," of the people who came into contact with him daily, men in the office of the India house, friends and neighbors. But over it all is cast the spell of Lamb's half-tragic laughter. He is never a Pollyanna, never a cheap optimist, but his own life was too tragic in its fundamentals to turn it into the tragedy of literature.

Next time you pick up "Tales From Shakespeare," written jointly by Charles and Mary Lamb, reflect for a moment on the tragedy that found mitigation in that collaboration.

DISCOVER OLD SHOP OF "ALICE IN WONDERLAND"

The demolition of a row of little ancient shops and houses adjoining Christ Church College, on St. Aldate's street, Oxford, a short time ago revealed the "little dark shop" where Alice in Wonderland "looked all around" in spite of the terrifying old sheep with the knitting needles.

The shop is a tiny one, and it is below street level, set in the end of a long row of timbered cottages running back from the narrow entry called Littlemore court. The entire little shop, including door, counter, and projecting windows, is exactly as it was in 1871 when Sir John Tenniel looked "Through the Looking Glass" and drew the little black shop for Lewis Carroll's classic. There is no sheep in the corner, and the dolls and toys have moved down the street, but the jars of unbreakable candy still hold their proper places in proper rows.

Not far from the tiny shop, on the opposite side of the street, in a projecting wing of Christ church, Lewis Carroll, The Rev. Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, foundation scholar and lecturer in mathematics, lived as an undergraduate and later as a don. He lived almost a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence. As the Rev. Dodgson, he is well known as the author of works on trigonometry, determinants, Euclid, and "Euclid's mathematics." But as a far less impressive personage, Lewis Carroll, he once wrote a book on symbolic logic, and is rather better known as the creator of a classic "Alice in Wonderland."

ITALIAN ROMANCE

In "Thunderstorm" which Alfred A. Knopf will publish on June 19th, G. E. Stern who needs no introduction to discriminating readers in this country, returns to her most felicitous manner.

Though very different from "The Matriarch" which has been acclaimed the "Foretold Saga" of a Jewish family, this story is done with so sure a grasp of character and events and is illuminated with so much shrewd and witty observation that it will undoubtedly be considered among the most delightful of Miss Stern's work. It is a story of Italy, the scene being La Collina, a certain alluring villa in which the English newlyweds, Johnny and Theo, have installed themselves. There Vanna and Ettore, an Italian couple who come to serve them, find the first real security they have ever known in the forty odd years of their lives and settle down to the enjoyment of their remaining years in peaceful and serene bliss. Then into the serene and pleasant life a letter brings news which precipitates a veritable thunderstorm, and provides Miss Stern with the opportunity to tell this amusing and brilliant story.

MINE OPERATORS RUIN YORKSHIRE FARM LANDS

By Associated Press

York—In consequence of a report that mining operations in the West Riding district of Yorkshire have caused subsidence extending over 3,000 acres, a commission of inspection will shortly make a tour to ascertain the extent of the damage.

In the valleys of the Dearne, Calder, Aire and Rother, land has become submerged, derelict and waterlogged to such an extent that it is unfit for agricultural purposes. It is said that similar conditions will reveal on further tracts of land in the Doncaster area when the coal fields there are fully developed if an intensive drainage scheme is not undertaken.

To consider the best means for such action a special committee has been appointed to investigate the whole situation.

story goes that one day he was at his publisher's in France when a good looking country girl came in and asked for a good new book. The publisher offered her a novel by Barbey D'Aureilly, "Une Histoire Sans Nom." The girl answered disdainfully "I don't read Barbey D'Aureilly." Whereupon the insulted author rose with a leap and shouted "You are quite right Madam, for I write neither for young girls, nor for scullery maids."

IRVING ZULKE

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

Dick's mother Gloria could scarcely believe her ears. Mother Gregory with her bright eyes and the blown roses in her cheeks, was the last person in the world who looked like a hospital case.

"Mr. Dick's father is out of town," Maggie went on. "And I do think some one of the family should be at the hospital when they operate on poor Miss Gregory. Please don't let Mr. Dick know about it, ma'am. It might kill him the way his heart is, and all."

"Of course, I won't," Gloria snapped, as she hung up the receiver.

But how to keep Dick from knowing about his mother. That was the question.

She couldn't go away and leave him all alone in the house, sick and helpless as he was!

And there was no one to stay with him. It was Mrs. O'Hara's day off. Randolph had gone to the dentist and wouldn't be back before 5 o'clock.

Suddenly Gloria thought of Miss Briggs. Yes, she would have to ask Miss Briggs to come and stay with Dick in her absence. There was nothing else to do.

"That was my dad on the phone," Gloria blurted to Dick. "He says my mother's sick and wants me to go over to the house right away. . . . Would you mind if I phoned Miss Briggs to stay here with you while I'm gone?"

Dick considered.

"Oh, I can stay here alone, can't I?" he asked, after a minute's pause. "There's no need to bother Miss Briggs."

"That's nonsense! You can't stay here by yourself!" Gloria cried. She picked up the telephone and called Dick's office number.

Miss Briggs' low, sweet voice answered at once.

"Could you leave the office for an hour or two, and come out here to the house?" Gloria asked her. "I've had some bad news from my mother and I've got to leave Mr. Gregory for a little while. It's your sister's day off duty, you know."

"I'll be there right away," Miss Briggs answered. Gloria was sure she could hear a note of eagerness in her voice.

"Dick Miss Briggs say she'd come?" Dick asked.

"Did she say she'd come?" Gloria laughed with cutting sarcasm. "Oh, boy, did she! Why you couldn't keep her away with wild horses! Her idea of a perfect time is taking care of you for an afternoon. . . . You flip it from me, Ricky, she has a real crush on her boss! And don't you forget it!"

"Why don't you phone mother to come instead?" Dick asked, ignoring Gloria's remarks about Miss Briggs. "I'd rather have her. She hasn't been here for an age."

"Oh, she's not at home today," Gloria replied. "I happen to know. She had a sudden vision of Mother Gregory in the white operating room of the hospital."

"I've got to hurry," she said. "Here put your arms into your bathrobe! And let me brush your hair. . . . I must doll you all up for Miss Briggs."

She straightened the covers of Dick's bed and laid the volume of Stevenson's "Vallima Letters" on his bedside table.

"There's your book," she said. Your darling Suey can sit here with her best bedside manner and read it to you all afternoon in her soothing sickroom voice. . . . and you won't miss your Gloria a bit!"

And again she was surprised at the sharp pang of jealousy that prickled through her at the thought of Miss Briggs sitting there with Dick all afternoon.

"If there's anything I can do for your mother let me know," Dick called after her as she went into her own room to dress. His kindness was a reproach in itself.

How good he was to her! And she didn't deserve it!

Gloria was ready to go long before the doorbell rang.

When at last it did, Gloria snatched up her coat and ran downstairs impatiently.

"If I'd had any sense I'd have sent a cab for you. Time counts in a thing like this!" she said sharply to Miss Briggs as they went up to Dick's room.

Miss Briggs flushed. She knew that what Gloria meant was that if she had had any sense she would have hurried to the house in a cab herself!

She bit her lip and said nothing. When she opened the door of Dick's room there was a radiant smile in her eyes.

"Good-by, you two," Gloria said, and was gone.

Gloria ran out to the garage and started the little blue roadster. Two minutes later it was skimming the shining wet pavements on the road to the hospital.

Gloria's heart beat fast as she neared the street corner that had become the favorite meeting place of herself and Stanley Wayburn.

Yes! There he was! Standing in the misty rain, smoking his everlasting cigarette.

He swept off his coat as Gloria headed her car in toward the curb, and stood bare-headed in the rain.

"For the love of Mike, put on your hat! Do you want to catch your death of dampness?" Gloria asked, opening the door of the car.

"Jump in, and be quick about it!" "If I'm going to catch cold, I've caught it now. You're kept me waiting there in the rain for almost an hour. . . . do you know it?" Stan asked. He settled into his seat and shook the raindrops from his pearl-gray hat.

"I wasn't coming today at all," Gloria said.

"You weren't coming?" Stan repeated. There was surprise in his voice.

Gloria shook her head. "But they telephoned to say that I'd better go right over to the hospital. Mother Gregory's there to be operated on for appendicitis. . . . I must hurry!"

She pressed her foot down on the accelerator, and the little car shot forward eagerly.

"I asked you to ride with me so I could tell you why I made up my mind not to meet you today," Gloria went on bravely. "This is the last time I'm ever going to see you. . . . or talk to you."

Stan opened the door of the car and tossed out his half-smoked cigarette.

"What's the big idea, Russ?" he asked, laying his arm along the back of the seat. Gloria leaned forward, away from it.

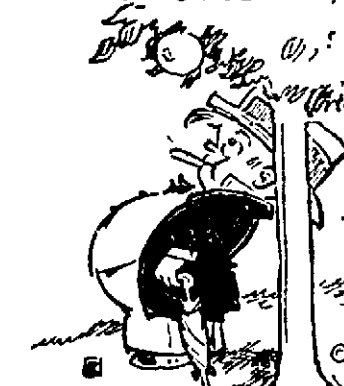

"You see, it's this way. . . . I've been thinking a lot about Dick and you and me lately," Gloria tried to explain. "I knew I couldn't go on living in the same house with him so long as I was thinking about you all the time. . . . seeing you every day."

"Last night I made up my mind to leave and go to New York to get a job on the stage. . . . but today when I looked at Dick I saw how much he needs me. Why, he's crazy about me, Stan! It would kill him if I went away from him! So I've made up my mind to put you right out of my thoughts and be a good wife to Dick from now on. I owe it to him. . . ."

BOSTON SOX ARE BAD MEDICINE FOR CHICAGO

Boston.—The Boston Red Sox have had the edge on only one club in the American League so far this season. That has been Chicago.

Fohl's team has met the White Sox on 17 occasions, coming through with nine triumphs. Outside of the Athletics, Collins' boys have experienced more trouble with the tallenders than with any other club in the circuit.

The other day the Red Sox sprang a bit of surprise by beating the Windy City entourage twice in a double bill. It was a rude jolt for the western team.

Detroit and St. Louis have been a tough pair for the Bostonians, with the Athletics and Senators ranking next. The Tanks have won nine games from the Red Sox while dropping six. Cleveland has 11 victories out of 18 tilts played with the Fohlites.

GOLF As Champions Play It

Is there a penalty when a ball is stopped by a person not one of the members of the foursome?

BY JOHNNY FARRELL
Cuban Open Champion, 1924

There is no penalty for hitting a person not a member of your foursome. That is called a Rub of the Green.

The ruling is fair in that you might be benefited by hitting some one in the crowd, and then again, you might get the worst of it. These things usually average up. This happens occasionally when playing before a gallery.

Vernon Collis.—Young Stribling the Georgia light heavyweight, easily defeated Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, in ten rounds.

ROMMEL WANTSTO HANG UP 30 WINS FOR 1925 SEASON

Athletic Hurling Ace Has Good Chance to Achieve New Honors in Mound Job

BY BILLY EVANS

Ed Rommel, pitching ace of Connie Mack's Athletics, is cherishing one large ambition of the 1925 model. He wants to win 30 ball games this year.

Rommel is particularly anxious to win that many for two reasons. First, it has been some years since a big league pitcher has hit that figure. Most important, however, is the fact that he believes it will get him into the world series.

Mack's knuckle ball artist has a great chance to achieve his ambition. In the first 100 games played by his club he turned in 20 wins. He hopes to win half that many in the remaining 50 tilts of the schedule.

Despite the fact that he is built along slender lines, Rommel is a glutton for work. He works easily, always has something in reserve and pitches with his head as well as his arm.

The fact that Rommel, aside from being Mack's twirling ace, is also his knuckle ball pitcher, gives some evidence of the ease with which he works.

HAS CHANCE FOR MARK

During the remainder of the season it is certain Rommel will get plenty of action. If it is up to some pitcher to hold a one or two-run lead late in the game, that task is sure to be handed to Eddie.

For that reason it would be no great surprise if Rommel hits the 30-mark in games won, perhaps exceeds that figure.

Rommel should start about 12 of the last 50 games to be played by the Mackmen. He should win at least seven of them. If he gets the breaks as relief pitcher, he should capture three or more victories. That would bring him up to the 30-mark in victories.

Three years ago, with a cellar ball club, he was the pitching sensation of the majors, annexing 27 victories and losing 13 games.

With a much better ball club back of him this year, Rommel is practically assured of an even better season. In 1922 his pitching was a wasted effort; this year it may mean the right to play in the world series.

Great control, dazzling knuckle ball and a good curve are Rommel's chief stock in trade. Incidentally, he has plenty of courage and is a brilliant fielder. When Rommel pitches the Athletics have five infielders.

Connie Mack says 1925 is a Philadelphia year. There is no doubt about it being a Rommel year.

RED SOX, DODGERS PUT CRIMP IN STRONG CREWS

New York.—It surely takes these "out of the running" teams to hand the old jolt to pennant contenders, or at least to clubs still considering themselves in the race.

At Boston the other day the lowly Red Sox put quite a crimp into the sales of the White Sox by handing Collins' team a double defeat. A few afternoon later Brooklyn caught the fast-flying Cincy Reds in a somewhat chesty mood and tripped 'em up twice.

Both of the two-play whippings were unlooked for. But it shows that nothing can be taken for granted in baseball, as some wise chap once remarked.

TENNIS PROS BUSY AS BRITAIN ADOPTS GAME

By Associated Press

London.—The increasing popularity of tennis among Britons is giving the professional time of his life. There are not enough to go round and not only are instructors at London and provincial clubs working overtime, but they have to refuse many applications from people owning country houses who wish to obtain their services over the weekend. Women pros are in just as much demand as men, and fees are said to be rising.

WILLS, RYAN FACE HARD FOES IN WOMEN NET MEET

Forest Hills, N. Y.—Narrowed down to a field of sixteen contenders in the third round, the battle for the national women's tennis championship Wednesday brings together international rivals in play that promised to witness the most spectacular play of the tournament so far.

Miss Helen Wills, titleholder, and her leading rival, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, victor Tuesday in both the doubles and singles, face formidable opponents this afternoon.

CLARK, BERGSTROM IN WOMEN'S GOLF FINALS

Shooting excellent golf, Neenah stars walked off with all the honors in the weekly event for women at Riverview country club Monday.

Mrs. J. W. Bergstrom won low gross honors and tied Mrs. Leslie Sensenbrenner in the second round of the women's club championship meet. The pair will meet in an 18-hole final the latter part of this week.

YANKEE'S TOT BATTERY

Here's the new "kid" battery of the New York Yankees. Roy Leubbe, catcher from Omaha, Western League, and Jim Marquis, left-handed pitcher from St. Joe, of the same circuit. Each is considered a coming star. Leubbe, besides rating the premier backstop in the Western, also shows plenty of sticking ability. Both youngsters are expected to prove valuable additions to the Huggins entourage.

Fight Fans Want Wills-Tunney Go As Jack Rests

BY JOE WILLIAMS

New York.—Mr. John L. Fan is a curious bird. Like a second-hand tire he will stand just so much, and not a bit more. Mr. John L. Fan has in recent weeks become very sour, not to say bitter, on the subject of one John Harrison Dempsey, hermit of the heavyweights.

Mr. John L. Fan is beginning to think he is being pushed around. That is one thing he will not tolerate. It is all right in certain circumstances to shove Mr. Fan but he simply will not stand to be pushed.

And it is becoming obvious that John Harrison Dempsey, for all his chatter about fighting in 1928—or is 1928 the date?—is pushing him around.

It is the earnest desire of Mr. Fan at the moment to have John Harrison Dempsey either put on the gloves or the Maxim silencer or both without further delay.

Moreover, the old bird is getting fed up on Harry Wills, known variously as the Brown Panther, the Dodge Dockhand and the Silent Senegambian.

Mr. Fan is beginning to suspect the colored clouter is getting away with something, and his sympathies are on the verge of turning to resentment.

Nothing is quite so annoying to the old bird as a belated discovery that his kindly impulses have been perverted.

For four years he has been on the sidelines whopping it up for the doctored day, leaving a robust and untrained note to the general chorus of "Fistiana" to "give Wills a chance." Now he is asking himself if Wills all the while wasn't giving him the festive run-around.

Wills has been fed on a steady diet of succulent setups for four years. On occasions he has looked the part of a real fighter. At other times he failed to impress anybody.

WHY NOT TUNNEY?

Always the word has gone out that Wills will "open up" until he gets Dempsey in the ring. Mr. John L. Fan is beginning to suspect this is a lot of per preserves, or the current fruit equivalent thereof.

Wills failed to knock out Firpo, but he did stop Welmer. Was he holding back against Firpo and cutting loose against Welmer? Don't be silly!

Wills has a chance to make good for the fight fans of this country who have disregarded color and prejudice and all the mean little things a situation of this sort involves and sided with him in a campaign for a Dempsey match.

He can take on Gene Tunney this year. Tunney wants to fight him. Tunney thinks he can whip him and is willing to make the match at reasonable terms, conceding the bulk of the gate to Wills.

Next to Dempsey, Tunney is the outstanding white heavyweight. His knockout over Timmy Gibbons put him in King ring. This writer sees no reason why Wills should not accept the match. He sees no reason why the public shouldn't demand that Wills take the match and go through with it instantly.

Dempsey is out of the picture this year. If not for all time, Tunney is decidedly in it at present and anxious for action. If Wills refuses to take on Tunney the public ought to forget him along with Dempsey and turn its attention to others more worthy of its homage.

their own partners for the event.

Miss Joan Clark defeated Mrs. Frank Holbrook and Mrs. J. V. Bergstrom won from Mrs. Leslie Sensenbrenner in the second round of the women's club championship meet. The pair will meet in an 18-hole final the latter part of this week.

NEENAH FAVORS HOME TALENT IN BASEBALL GAMES

Twin Cities Believe "Cash" Players Do Not Work for Town's Best Interests

Neenah.—Many baseball fans of the Twin Cities do not understand why interest in the Menasha-Neenah State league baseball team gradually diminished and why the club was finally forced out of existence.

There was a professional team in the Twin Cities but a few months ago and now there is none. What is the cause of this? Many people think that golf, tennis and other sports which have become popular in this vicinity during the past few years are taking away the magic attraction of baseball. This may be true in some instances, but it did not have the same effect here. Others, who more clearly understand why the local club lived but a short time, believe that members of the team were too highly salaried.

The last version is really the cause of the death of professional baseball here. However, years passed before this really happened.

Baseball was the most popular sport in the Twin Cities for many years. Twenty years ago the national pastime attracted practically every person, young and old, in the Twin Cities. Some years ago teams of the Twin Cities were participating in the old Lake Shore league and the diamond sport was at its zenith. A few years ago the State league was organized and the local club received support, but it did not lure as many customers to the games as of old. As each year passed interest in the sport diminished and this year baseball fell flat. There is only one reason why it did. Baseball had become too highly professionalized in the Twin Cities.

Years ago all teams were composed of local players with the exception of the pitcher and the catcher. Gradually outside players were secured, due to the great rivalry between the different towns. The importing of players finally brought about the downfall of baseball here. Everybody knows that the expense is greater when players are hired from different towns. This is what happened here and finally the gate receipts became lower than the expenses.

Ball players who only play for the money there is in it do not appeal to baseball admirers. The Twin Cities need a ball club composed of local players who do not play for "the cash," but who will work for the interest of the town.

HARRIS TO HEAD SPORTS IN BAY COMMUNITY CLUB

Green Bay.—Jack Harris, captain of the Wisconsin university football eleven in 1924, has been appointed athletic director of the Columbus Community club here. It was announced Wednesday. The club, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, is building a large new club house, which will be completed soon.

Harris will have complete charge of all the athletics of the club. He will take up his new duties September 1. It also was reported that he has signed to play football with a professional team here this fall. He was one of the strongest men in the Wisconsin backfield while he attended the university.

Cleveland, O.—Carl Tremaine, Cleveland bantamweight had a shade over Johnny Sheppard, Boston, in ten rounds. Tommy Freeman, Hot Springs, won a technical knockout over Mike Dempsey, Rochester, N. Y.

75 Candidates For 1925 Badger Grid Jobs Asked To Report For Workouts

LEADS BADGERS

STEVE POLASKI

Steve Polaski, end on Badger football teams for three years and known as a fighting krillder, will lead the 1925 hopes of the state university. Steve gained fame a few years ago by being the only man in the Big Ten to score a touchdown against Michigan, then Conference champs.

JOHNNY STUART LET OUT BY CARDINALS

The St. Louis Cardinals have released Pitcher Johnny Stuart to Milwaukee on option. Stuart is the former Ohio State university football star, who quickly thinking in a crucial moment helped to beat Michigan a few years ago. He has been with the Cards for the past couple years.

HAGENLACHER LOOMS AS CUE CONTENDER

By virtue of his recent startling defeat by Willie Moppe, Eric Hagenlacher, the German billiard champion, has established himself as a most dangerous contender for the world's 15.2 ball title. He showed plenty of skill and competitive ability in his match with the former cue king. Moreover, he seems to be improving all the while.

12 1924 Letter Men and 10 Second Stringers to Work With Little and Polaski

Madison.—Led by the great pair of fighters, Coach George Little and Captain Steve Polaski, 75 candidates for the 1925 University of Wisconsin Varsity football squad will be invited to report in Madison on September 13 for the early practice. The invitation for the candidates includes 12 lettermen from the squad of the previous year.

Besides Captain Steve Polaski, who will play his third and last year at left end, the Badger squad will include three other ends who gained their experience last season: Jeff Burrus, Stoughton, Wis., third year as a varsity end; Paul Long, with a year's experience at the wing position; and the versatile Lloyd Larson, Milwaukee, who will undoubtedly be shifted from the pilot job to one of the extremities. Ray Stipek, Glendive, Mont., a guard of two years' prior experience and now at his best; Paul Nelson, Superior, Wis., tackle with two year's experience. Among the backs are Doyle Harmon, Mitchell, S. D., who shared the quarterback job last fall; Harry McAndrews, New Richmond, Wis., a speedy veteran at left half; and Roland Barnum, Evansville, Wis., who should prove a running mate to Mac.

The Badgers are even hopeful that the backs that are coming up to join the varsity this fall will prove an able body. Barofsky, Marinette, Wis., and Crofoot, Mason City, Iowa, appear to be a pair of likely candidates for the quarterback job, but will undoubtedly receive plenty of opposition from Goodlad. Harmon and Larson, the holdovers at that position, are more likely to be shifted to other positions to leave newcomers step up. Barnum is expected to take the place of the Badger plunging terror of 1924, Captain Jack Harris. Larry Reuland, Redsburg, Wis., is one of the most promising backs to join the varsity this season and he should push the speedy McAndrews all the way. Among the other youngsters who should continue to make the regular trouble in holding their positions are Ray, Bartlett, La Grange, Ill.; Dick Clement, Oak Park, Chicago; Paul Curfiss, "Wauwatosa" Wis.; Emerson Hawley, Beaver Dam, Wis.

The fullback job is still a tossup with a quartet of backs all of whom have seen some varsity experience. Bob Kreuz, Menomonie, Wis.; Lester Lett, Sturgeon Bay, Wis.; Walter Muegge, Lake Geneva, Wis.; and Fred Radke, Owen, Wis.; who was a second choice during the stay of Merrill Taft at the job, should lead the field.

The Badger line should hold its own with any of the past few years and despite the fact that Coach Little will have several gaps to plug are the season gets underway. Earl Wilke and Bob Bonini, Appleton, both under-classes of Tecumseh last fall, will be back for a merry tussle as a regular at the pivot job.

The tackles are a tried crowd and should fill in a great shape for the entire season. Paul Nelson, Superior, Wis., will see his third year of action in the Cardinal; Austin Straubel will find a year's experience of great value, as will Fred Starnard and Robert Kasiska. The prospects from the Frosh squad now eligible are Parvin Evres, Brown, Ill.; James De Haven, South Bend, Ind.; Ruddy Vassile, Fond du Lac; Bob Pike, Portage; and William Plees, Waterloo, Wis.

WAUSAU MAN SENT TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

By Associated Press
Superior—Stanley Lukwaz, Wausau, who Tuesday pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, was sentenced to five months at the Milwaukee House of Correction and fined $500 and costs in federal court. Three others indicted in the same case, Andrew Lukwaz, Walter Rose and Teofil Pudok, were fined $200, $100, and $200, respectively. The criminal case at the present term of court here have all been completed. The most important case to be taken up on the civil calendar is the suit of the Chippewa Power Co. against James O. Heyworth, Chicago contractor, which involves $200,000. The case, which will probably continue for two weeks, starts Sept. 1.

COOLIDGE WILL NOT WORK OUT FULL TAX BILL

Less there is an agreement to begin payments of war debts. The Belgians are seeking a $100,000,000 loan and they know that the interest rate they will have to pay will be much less if they have made satisfactory settlement with the United States than if they have not. It is their own borrowing power which is at stake.

ATTITUDE AFFECTS CREDIT

In tense, the same issue is presented in the case of the other debtors, like France and Italy. They also must recognize that postponement of a settlement affects their credit in the United States. This is the strongest lever of pressure the American government has and it is being used.

France will hardly derive from the Belgian negotiations much comfort, because with due regard to the arguments made by the Belgians that they desire lenience, the proposition is not a sentiment but one based on banking credit. This does not mean that concessions have been withheld, but it does mean that some of the ideas that Uncle Sam was not going to press seriously for a debt settlement are mistaken. The president has every confidence that Congress will approve the terms of the Belgian-American settlement. While Representative Tilton was not present during the discussion of the Belgian debt question he will naturally follow the course of the executive.

It was while the president, Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot were discussing taxation that Representative Tilton happened along. The discussion drifted from taxes to the matter of public buildings. Something will have to be done shortly, it is realized, to relieve the congestion in federal buildings, not only in Washington but throughout the country. Tentatively, the plan is to approve $5,000,000 annually for 10 years, for buildings in the District of Columbia and about $10,000,000 a year for 10 years for structures outside of the district. The real difficulty has been in preventing the Democrats from killing the measure by filibuster, or other means, because of the belief that the Republican administration would favor northern cities.

ORDERS EXPEDITION TO LEAVE COUNTRY

Urga, Mongolia.—The Mongolian government has ordered the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews of Beloit to cease its exploration and scientific work and to leave Mongolian territory, alleging that Mr. Andrews had violated the terms of his agreement with Mongolian scientific organizations.

The Mongolian government further alleges that besides carrying out his scientific work in the domains of paleontology, geology and zoology, Mr. Andrews' expedition also has engaged in topographical observation work and has employed a number of suspicious—in military sense—persons.

Mr. Andrews also is accused of carrying on political propaganda and stirring up the Mongolians against "the red bolsheviks."

For a week past members of the Frick family had been alarmed by a mysterious night visitor who hurled stones out of the darkness and made raids upon hen houses and gardens. Farmers of the neighborhood agreed to guard the place, and Alberts was thus engaged when he was shot.

Wisconsin Rapids—A sheriff's posse with bloodhounds is searching the countryside in the vicinity of the William Frick farm, near Junction City for an unknown person, the supposed author of a series of mysterious shootings which culminated in the shooting of Charles Alberts, who was on guard at the Frick farm. Alberts was hit by part of a shotgun charge, but was not seriously hurt.

Oshkosh—Ray Thomas, former Florida professional, will attempt to swim Lake Winnebago, largest fresh water inland lake in the middle west and second largest in the country, on Labor day, Sept. 7. He will start on the east shore of the lake and finish at Oshkosh, a distance of 12 miles, and expects to complete the swim in 12 hours. So far as is known, only one other attempt has been made to swim the lake, and that at a point some miles north of this city, where the lake is narrower.

34 KILLED, 40 HURT
IN BOAT EXPLOSION

The rails. Others climbed to the gunwales and attempted to reach the top deck. Bots were lowered when it was thought the craft was going to sink. Many of the victims failed to hear the report and their first warning was the swift rush of deadly steam which trapped them. Those who saw the disaster ashore said that steam enveloped the ship to such a degree that she could not be seen from shore.

The navy rescue parties worked feverishly to get the passengers off. Captain Charles E. Rice, commanding officer at the hospital, had summoned every available naval physician as well as priests and ministers from the naval vessels in the harbor.

Inside the hospital two wards were prepared to receive the victims. So swiftly did they come that many were placed on floors outside.

The majority of those who died at the navy hospital were in such shape, physicians said, that they could only try to make their last moments as painless as possible.

Early today there were 33 injured at the naval hospital. Naval physicians said that several and perhaps all of these patients might die.

Many of the Mackinac crew shared the fate of unfortunate passengers. Some 20 are injured, several seriously and a few are dead.

The ship's officers, with the exception of Chief Engineer John Grant, of Providence, escaped injury.

The night of horror presents scores of pitiful sights.

In the first group of injured at the government pier was a 10-year-old girl. As a patrolman rushed to her side she held up her scalded arms and pleaded "please blow on them, they burn so."

Among the dead is John M. Hunter, 21, of Brown University sophomore and a member of the crew. The youth went to work as an officer on the Mackinac a week ago against the wishes of his uncle, Charles M. Hunter, a wealthy Providence realtor.

Pawtucket, R. I.—The burning of a large pile of mud drum in the bottom of the boiler of the steamer Mackinac was the cause of Tuesday's disaster, George J. Kelly, general manager of the Blackstone Transportation Co., owners of the vessel, declared Wednesday.

Investigation revealed, he said, no weakness in the main boiler. He declared that chief engineer Grant reported slight repairs to the boiler necessary Tuesday. Sailing was held up until all was pronounced safe. The delay amounted to about 45 minutes. Passengers were not permitted aboard until half an hour after the scheduled sailing time.

SAILING MASTER IS DROWNED IN RIVER

Manistee, Mich.—Captain John Smith of this city, treasurer of the Fore Marquette Line steamers on the Great Lakes and a former sailing master, was drowned here late Tuesday when his automobile leaped the dock into the Manistee river.

Captain Smith, spectators said, had parked his automobile near the edge of the pier. Apparently in great when he stepped on the starting device the car raced forward and lunged into the river. Divers recovered the body.

EXPECT BLAINE WILL ANNOUNCE ELECTION SOON

Increased Political Activity
Seen in Madison With Governor's Return

Madison—Increased political activity here was in prospect Wednesday with the return of Governor Blaine from his trip to the northern part of the state. The executive returned to his office Tuesday, and had a conference with Robert M. La Follette, Jr., progressive candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator in the afternoon.

The call of the special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator La Follette has been generally expected to come shortly after the governor's return. Attorney General Herman L. Ekern Wednesday made public a summary of the laws governing the election.

The primary election must be held two weeks prior to the special election, and nomination papers must be filed at least 15 days prior to the primary, the summary said. The required number of signatures on the nomination petitions, it stated, must be 3,117 for the Republicans, 651 for the Democrats, and $66 for the Socialists, based on the votes for presidential electors in the last election in which the parties had candidates.

Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman said he had found a provision in the election laws which would prevent any candidate defeated in the primary election from entering the special election as an independent candidate. This provision, he said, requires independent candidates to file their nomination papers for a place on the special election ballot not more than 40 days and not less than 30 days before the election. Thus he pointed out that only two weeks before the primary and election, the defeated candidates would not have time to file as independents.

SEEK REVOCATION OF GOETTLICHER PERMIT

An adjourned meeting of the Appleton zoning board of appeals was scheduled to be held in the city hall on Wednesday for the purpose of acting upon an appeal taken to a previous hearing about two weeks ago by residents living near the Charles Goettlicher bakery at the end of E. North-st. Circuit court action has been started by the appellants to have the action of the board of appeals in granting a permit for the bakery addition set aside. The residents were too late in protesting against the building permit, and are now appealing to the board to revoke the permit of occupancy.

DRUNK CAUSES RIOT AT WAVERLY

Policeman's Effort to Throw
Dancer Out of Hall Causes
Disturbance

A small riot was started at Waverly beach, between 10 and 11 o'clock, Tuesday night when Deputy Frank Hoeftler, Chilton, tried to remove an alleged drunken dancer from the hall. The alleged drunk struck Hoeftler and the deputy drew his club and struck him. A number of the dancer's friends rushed to the deputy, yelling and screaming, and everyone in the dance hall rushed out to learn the cause of the disturbance. Many in the crowd were calling "Coward" and "Baby," at the officer and some were inviting him to "Fight like a man." Hoeftler, however, backed slowly into the dance hall and the crowd followed.

Joseph Muench, manager at the beach, tried to quiet the mob, but one of the beach employees was assaulted by the gang and the noise and excitement started all over again. The deputy managed to stop the fight and then the crowd started after him again and he retreated into the saloon and the doors were locked. The orchestra stopped playing and the lights were turned off in the dance hall and on the grounds so the crowd would leave. Many people did leave but most of the "gang" that caused the disturbance remained around the door of the saloon calling for the officer to come out and "fight it out."

KEEP OFF NEWLY PAVED STREETS, MAYOR WARNS

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Wednesday appealed to automobilists of this city to keep off new pavements until they have a good chance to become thoroughly set. Freshly laid concrete pavement requires about 18 days before it is advisable for one to drive over it, it is explained. While the city has placed barricades at the various intersections, it is not always possible to keep them up. The minute they are down, cars get on the pavement quickly and thus mar the paving. Two motorists were tagged by the police Monday, but after receiving a warning against repetition of the offense, they were released.

3 MORE SPEEDERS PAY FINES OF $10

Albert Beltz Is Latest Driver to Fall into County Motor-cops' Net

Albert Beltz, Appleton, was added to the list of county speeders for the week on Tuesday when he was arrested by Andrew Miller, county motorcop, while traveling 45 miles an hour on highway 15. Beltz paid a fine of $10 and costs when he appeared before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Wednesday morning.

Two other county speeders, arrested when the municipal court bench was vacant because of the death of the late Judge A. M. Spencer, pleaded guilty Wednesday morning. Kenneth Wagester, an out-of-town speeder, arrested on Aug. 2 by Alfred Dunn for traveling 42 miles an hour on highway 47 in the town of Grand Chute, got a rebate of 20 cents, when he sent in a check for $13. Edward Casperson, Appleton, the county's "fastest driver" of the year, paid a fine of $10 and costs, totaling $13.20. Casperson was arrested by Andrew Miller on July 26 in the town of Grand Chute, while "stepping on it" for a 58 mile an hour pace.

2 MORE POSTAL STATIONS TO BE OPENED SEPT. 1

Station No. 4 Will Be in Pettibone Store and No. 5 at Rademacher Grocery

Two new United States postoffice substations will be in operation in Appleton after Sept. 1, according to an announcement made Wednesday morning by Postmaster William H. Zuehlke. The new substations will be station number 4, located in the Pettibone-Peabody Co. store, and station number 5, which will be located in the H. Rademacher grocery store, 605 N. Superior-st. Station number 1 is located at Downer's West End pharmacy, number 2 is at the Junction Grocery store, and number 3 is at the Voigt drug store.

The object of the substations according to Mr. Zuehlke, is to bring postal service nearer to the people, and to make it possible to transact postal business at hours when the windows at the postoffice are closed. This is especially true of substations in small stores where letters and packages may be mailed in the evening. Mr. Zuehlke said an enormous business had been done by the three substations in the few years of their existence. Their convenience is their greatest advantage he said. The money order business done by the three substations is as large as the money order business at the postoffice about ten years ago he said. A station will be established in the Fourth ward as soon as a suitable location can be found, it was announced.

The two new stations were authorized by John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general. Mary Schweitzer, employed at Pettibone-Peabody Co. store is to be in charge of station number 4, and H. Rademacher will have charge of station number 5.

FIND APPLETON HAIRPINS WAY UP ON MOUNTAIN

Even the most isolated parts of the country are reached by Appleton products, according to a letter received here by Mrs. A. J. Nolan, of Bremertown, Wash., from her husband in that city. Mrs. Nolan formerly was Miss Lilly May Peerenboom, daughter of Mrs. Julius Peerenboom, 330 W. Seventh-st., where she is visiting. Mr. Nolan is brother of Mrs. G. H. Peerenboom, 318 S. Elm-st. and was born in this city.

While hunting mountain lions in the Olympic range in Washington with a group of friends, Mr. Nolan discovered a package of Scolding Locks hairpins, manufactured in this city, in a place where he said it is almost impossible for a woman to traverse. The hairpins were found within six miles of the top of Mt. Eleanor, thirty miles from the nearest settlement.

The letter stated that Mr. Nolan and his friends were so astonished that they sent up three rousing cheers for Appleton and the Scolding Locks Hairpin Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Stingle of Black Creek visited Appleton friends Sunday.

School Clothes For Children

With school days just a few weeks off every mother is turning her attention to the problem of the school child's wardrobe. Frocks, blouses, shirts, trousers and knickerbockers should all be in readiness, spick and span—when the little ones trot off to school the first day.

A great help in this work will be the Sewing Booklet which this Bureau has for free distribution. It shows attractive designs for children's clothes — both boys' and girls'. It explains in detail how to make the articles shown and suggests ways of trimming and finishing.

This book will help you save both time and money in outfitting the children. Send for your copy today. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.
